ment is in the process of organizing a trade mission with the dual object of making secure the existing British interests in Spain and arranging for extending the interests in the reconstruction of the country.

A most reliable source reported that Lord Halifax has been pre-occupied with the appointment of an ambassador to Spain, and that since the country will occupy a significant position in European politics a most prominent person—not necessarily a member of diplomatic corps—would be selected for the post.

SEEKS WAR'S END.

PARIS, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The British government was reported today in circles close to the president of government Spain, Manuel Azana, to have taken the lead in attempting to end the long civil war.

Azana was said to be supporting efforts of the British Prime Minister, Neville Chamberlain, as was the French premier, Edouard Daladier.

Spanish government officials with Azana at the Spanish embassy where the foreign minister, Julio Alvarez Del Vayo, was reported attempting to stave off the former's resignation as president, said Chamberlain personally was directing the British peace efforts through representatives at Burgos.

Previous efforts to effect a peace collapsed after the insurgent occupation of Catalonia because of Generalissimo Franco consistently refused to guarantee the safety of Spanish government leaders which insurgents accused of "high crimes."

parents were natives of Massachusetts but moved to Pennsylvania, where they located on a farm. Mr. Carroll's early days were spent on a farm. During the winters he attended school and during the summers he saved money to put him through the first year of a medical school. It was his ambition then to become a doctor, as his older brother, Thomas H. Carroll, had been, graduated from a medical school and had been assigned the post of Northern Pacific physician at Bozeman, Mont.

In 1883 Mr. Carroll came West to be with his brother at Bozeman. He then hoped to accumulate enough money to complete his medical course. However, he came to Butte a year later and his plans for entering on a professional career were abandoned.

His first job here was that of clerk in a retail grocery store. Later he secured a position in a general merchandising concern. It was then that he decided to follow a business career instead of medicine. Together with D. W. McIntyre he founded a grocery store at 316 North Main street. The business was known as McIntyre and Carroll. In 1896 he bought his partner's interests. A year later he moved the business to the Little Jo block at 126 West Park street. His business flourished and for years ranked as one of the leading grocery concerns in the Mining district. He retired from business in 1921.

From the first Mr. Carroll took an active interest in civic affairs. For many years he was president of the old Butte Commercial association, the predecessor of the Butte Chamber of Commerce. In politics he was a Republican. As such he served as a member of the city council from his ward during the years of 1906 and 1907. Following the turn of the century he was Republican candidate for mayor of Butte, but lost to his Democratic opponent, "Pat" Mullins, in a close race.

Soon after the Butte Rotary club was organized in 1914, he became a member. He was one of the most active members of the group until he retired from business when his classification with the club expired. He was an active member of the Butte Chamber of Commerce and was connected with its board of directors, serving as a director at the time of his death. He was also active in many of the Y. M. C. A. membership campaigns and last spring was a winner of one of the contests held in connection with the campaign. He was a supporter of the Presbyterian church. He was one of the founders of the Butte Anti-Tuberculosis society and was its president for several terms following the World war period.

When the old Miners Savings Bank and Trust company was organized in 1907, Mr. Carroll was one of its charter directors. The name of the bank was changed in 1933 to the Miners National bank. Mr. Carroll remained on the board and held his post as director continuously until his death.

Mr. Carroll was active in Masonic and Eastern Star circles for many years. He was a past grand master of the Grand Lodge of Montana, A. F. & A. M., having served in that capacity during 1910. The following year he served as grand patron of the Grand Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, of Montana.

His Masonic affiliations included: Mt. Moriah lodge No. 24, which he served as master in 1904; Deer Lodge chapter No. 3, R. A. M.; Montana commandery No. 3, of which he was commander in 1912, and Bagdad temple of the Shrine. He was also a member of Ruth chapter No. 2, O. E. S., of which he was patron in 1908.

He loved the great outdoors and of recent years never missed an opportunity to hunt. He had a summer cabin on Rock creek, where he and Mrs. Carroll spent much of their time during the summer months. They were often joined there by Butte friends over week ends.

The story of his love for fishing was recalled today by one of his intimate friends of the streams of recent years. Soon after he went into the grocery business here and during the time that stores remained open until about midnight on Saturday nights, he would load up a buckboard with provisions, get a few of his stream associates and start for Ralston. They would arrive there in time for Mrs. Ralston to cook their breakfasts and then they would spend the day on the Big Hole river. They drove back to Butte in time to open the store on Monday morning, always having in possession a fine mess of trout and whitefish for friends.

He was a great lover of horses. During the "horse and buggy days" he drove one of the finest span of animals in Butte, friends today said. He was one of the founders of the old Butte Driving club.

The surviving relatives include: His widow, Mrs. Alda Carroll, who was with him when the end came; a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Maloney, and a nephew and niece, John Maloney and Miss Bertha Maloney of Bradford, Pa.; a niece, Mrs. Milton Spangler, Pittsburgh, Pa.; a mother-in-law, Mrs. Rose H. Riter, and brothers-in-law and sisters-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Barlow and Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Riter, all of Butte.
